My name is Todd Jason and over the last 20 years I've become one of the most sought after trainers in the personal development space. I've helped thousands of men find their purpose, engage in more meaningful relationships, and significantly increase their incomes.

Along the way I noticed there were 4 main 'Warrior' types prevalent among modern men - with each one containing both positive and negative attributes.

This led me to creating this Warrior assessment - a truly potent tool that can have you understanding the greatest opportunities and biggest challenges inherent in your unique Warrior type.

Here's What That Means:

An Impassioned Warrior has a strong desire to become the very best man possible.

He tends to have a strong sense that there's a greater life narrative waiting to be discovered, uncovered and activated - but he's missing that spark, that sudden burst of inspiration, or that moment of clarity.

Impassioned Warriors can feel down, frustrated and confused about this - and often contemplate 'how much they've tried' to find that inspiration. Sometimes they even feel like victims and experience powerlessness - which is too bad because Impassioned Warriors have limitless potential as they know better than other warrior types how to use emotions as fuel for achievement.

The biggest mistake they can make is to stop searching for that spark or inspiration. If they do they will toggle into feeling despondent, bored, anxious and judgemental. Although he doesn't always feel like it, an Impassioned Warrior has a CHOICE about how he wants his future to unfold...

Common Mistakes & Pitfalls of The Impassioned Warrior:

If the Impassioned Warrior fully lets go of his quest to find deeper purpose, more fulfilling work, more meaningful relationships, or whatever it is he truly wants, he risks falling into a deep rut that is difficult to get out of.

This warrior type can easily toggle into a painful spin cycle of negative thinking, and instead of being a shining bright light in the world he is reduced to being more a passive observer in his life - just going through the motions each day - and not embodying his full energy or highest potentials.

The feelings of isolation and victimhood can become paramount in his life - and he becomes relegated to playing a much smaller game than he ever thought he would. While he might find some positive things to focus on, there's an underlying sense that 'the best has passed me by' - and he feels beaten down by this thought.

At this point he spends most of his time checking out, finding ways to distract himself, or rationalizing that 'things could be worse'. Instead of being a powerful creator, he becomes a cynical judge.

Here's What You Can Do About It:

Thankfully there are some practical and achievable steps you can take to avoid these outcomes and activate your very best Impassioned Warrior for guaranteed success.

Here's what you can do almost immediately - and it all begins with putting into place a short-term, yet infinitely powerful, Warrior Activation Plan....

Effective Warrior Activation for the Impassioned type has 3 requirements:

1 Life Blueprinting

This is the process for designing your life by 'thinking with the end in mind' and then systematically working backwards. When an Impassioned Warrior discovers this process he immediately loses any feelings of confusion and victimhood. Absolutely essential for him to do this....

2 Reprogramming Negative Thinking

Adding super-charged awareness into your normal, everyday experiences gives you the ability to reprogram your perceptions for more positive outcomes. An Impassioned Warrior can make his future predictable, it just takes a systematic approach that's been proven to work.

3 Community & Brotherhood

The true amplifier that empowers an Impassioned Warrior to experience life-changing success is brotherhood. Once this man finds a place where he can receive mentorship and also give his unique talents - he is off to the races. His success becomes imminent.

Once an Impassioned Warrior says YES to engaging in this Activation Plan, it doesn't take long for the results to occur. The most important thing for him is to access his potent inspiration, and take a clear stand for unleashing his greatest future!
